

THE WEATHER.

Fair Friday and probably Saturday with not much change in temperature.

Editorial Comment

Gen. Foch, supreme commander of the Allied armies, is now hailed as the greatest strategist, if not the leading military genius of all time.

The Senate Military Committee recommends a separate department of aviation with a cabinet minister at its head.

The Huns are said to be losing some of their cocksureness. Enthusiasm is not helped by going backward.

Merritt Powell, of Madison county, and his lungs weakened and invalided home, has died in Arizona where he sought relief.

Superintendent Charlie Vaughn is making an extra effort to finish Main Street by the fall. It lacks but half a block and the only trouble is to get the asphalt in time.

Next week will be fair week and the merchants are getting ready for the usual big week's business. From all indications the fair is going to be bigger and better than ever.

Some of the Americans in the Engineers Corps are referred to officially as "deserters" because they left construction ranks without leave and rushed to the front to take part in the Hun hunt.

Chocolate candy they say it to be a thing of the past after January 1, but no special harm will be done. Many a good piece of candy has been ruined by covering it with chocolate, is the opinion of those who don't like chocolate.

A petition that the trial court be directed to grant Thomas J. Mooney a new trial on the ground that his conviction was brought about through malfeasance practiced by the district attorney, was denied by the state supreme court. Mooney is awaiting execution.

The statement that neither he nor the other men in attendance consider the condition of Senator James as critical was made Wednesday by Edgar H. James, brother of the Senator, who is spending a short time in Baltimore. This in the face of the fact that the press reports indicate that his condition has grown hopeless.

Mile by mile the big salient is disappearing. More than half of it is already gone. Shaped like the new moon, it was originally 100 miles long and 40 miles deep in middle of the crescent between St. Quentin and Amiens. It will all be gone as soon as the Huns can get back to the Hindenburg line, where the Kaiser and his six sons are supposed to be.

The vanguard of America's 5,000 airplanes with which Germany is to be brought to terms are already doing duty at the front and will now go over in a steady stream. The American air service can man 5,000 bombing machines next spring. Certainly there is no great difficulty about their ammunition. Machines are what is needed. To keep 5,000 bombing planes in service would probably require monthly replacements of 1,000 machines, but several times that many will be turned out.

WILL BE GOOD.

Prior to an address by Secretary of War Baker at the Frankfort arsenal, 5,000 munitions workers at the big plant pledged their loyalty to the Government and promised not to strike under any conditions for the duration of the war.

HOPKINSVILLE MINISTER.

Revival services will begin at the Broadway Methodist church early in September. Rev. H. H. Jones, who is stationed at the Hopkinsville Methodist church, has been secured for the meeting.—Bowling Green News.

NEW ORDER.

Official orders received by Camp Zachary Taylor limit the time of service in the Depot Brigade to six months, after which period the soldiers and officers will be either sent overseas or transferred to divisions in this country.

FEDERAL OFFICERS IN A FAIR WAY TO STOP BLOCKADE RUNNING.

Two more arrests have been made under federal warrants in connection with the transportation of whiskey into dry territory.

Emmett Clark, col. arrested Tuesday night, was allowed his liberty on a $500 bond and his trial set for today.

Wednesday night another car was caught and Jas. H. Frazier and B. O. Hunter arrested. They were arraigned before Commissioner Frank Cunningham at 2 o'clock yesterday and the cases were handled by Assistant District Attorney S. Merrill Russell. The defendants waived examination and were released on bonds. The first car contained 170 bottles of liquor. The second car contained ten cartons of whisky in small bottles. The federal authorities seized the whisky and it is stored in the vault at the county clerk's office.

The officers overlooked this car while going to Clarksville and went on into Clarksville and raided a bootlegging place and brought back with them a negro named Bell whose trial will be held this morning at 10 o'clock. Two cases of liquor, containing three gallons each, was seized and brought with the officers to this city and placed with the other lot.

TO FILE MORE PETITION

Tomorrow will be the day for filing supplementary petitions for the calling of the prohibition election Oct. 4. The petitions filed contained 3204 names and other petitions have since been signed by those who were anxious to get on the lists. It is expected that several hundred more names will be added. The number required was 1866.

The committee has made a request that all petitions to be filed be brought to town early Saturday morning.

FOLLOWING THE FLAG

R. R. Roseborough, a brother of Irving Roseborough, has arrived in France.

Frank Williams, son of Walter Williams, has received his call to report for duty at the Great Lakes Training Station. He enlisted some time ago in the naval aviation corps.

C. S. Coleman left last night for Chicago to see his son James T. Coleman, of the aviation corps, who will leave tonight for an embarkation port.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hanbery have received a sword from their son R. V. Hanbery. The weapon was presented to Mr. Hanbery by the gun crew of his ship. It bears the following inscription:

Presented to R. V. Hanbery by the gun crew of the S. S. J. L. Luckenbach.

Backward, fall backward, Oh Hun in thy flight
Get a new place to run from morning until night;
The British and French are shooting all about,
And the Yankees will get you if you don't watch out!

ANOTHER DELAY.

Delay over the excess profits tax will probably prevent the $5,000,000, 000 Revenue Bill, which was practically completed with the exception of this item yesterday, from being reported until the middle of next week.

HERE WE ARE UNCLE SAM

YOUNGSTERS REACHING 21 IN LAST 90 DAYS REGISTER SATURDAY.

Tomorrow has been designated by the Secretary of War as the day when all the young men who have reached their 21st birthday since June 5, shall register for military service.

It is not known how many young men will be in this registration, but those who do not have to register tomorrow will get their chance early in September when, from every indication, all the men in the country from 18 to 21 and 31 to 45 will have to register.

DESERTING TO THE FRONT

Some of the American soldiers have invented a new military crime. They are "deserting" to the front line.

The engineers and other troops whose duties keep them in the rear of the fire zone or at the base, were found to have abandoned their units.

When this breach of discipline was investigated it was discovered that the men were so anxious to be in the thick of the fighting that they had "deserted" and made their way to the front trenches, where they took part in the recent battles.

A few of these ardent warriors distinguished themselves in Australian uniforms and got among the Anzacs and earned conspicuous distinction with the violent colonists, so that four of them were decorated by King George.

OPENING OF BETHEL

Bethel Woman's College will open what promises to be its best session in recent years on September 18.

Miss Clara Belle Thompson, president of the college, has returned from Bryn Mawr, where she has been visiting friends, and is hard at work getting ready for the opening of the school.

There will be an unusually strong faculty this year and the attendance of students promises to be large.

DAKOTA HARVEST ON.

(By Associated Press.)

Hron, S. D., Aug. 22.—People from the cities are hurrying into the harvest fields to aid farmers in gathering what is characterized as South Dakota's greatest crop of grain.

After finishing their work in stores and offices, business men don overalls in mid-afternoon and work in the harvest fields until ten o'clock at night. They receive the standard wage of 45 cents an hour, and in most cases the money is given to the Red Cross or to some other war fund.

Women are assisting the men in their work in many parts of the state. People from all walks of life rub elbows in the task of gathering the bumper crops.

NASHVILLE, FRANCE.

(By Associated Press.)

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 21.—Capt. Frank Nash, Thirteenth Railway Engineers, formerly of St. Louis, was billeted with his command in a wooded portion of France which gradually grew into quite a village. Not having a name, the soldiers christened the place "Nashville" in Nash's honor.

Notification of the unique distinction has just reached relatives of Capt. Nash here.

The Italian grain crop along the Po river front has been harvested under fire.

WEDGE DRIVEN BETWEEN GEN. BOEHM AND CROWN PRINCE WHILE NOYON IS ENVELOPED

(By Associated Press.)

The German battle line in France is still crumbling under the impetus of the attacks of the French and British.

From the region of Soissons to the vicinity of Lassigny the enemy was visited with further heavy defeats, while further north between the Somme river at Bray to the south of Arras, Field Marshal Haig's men have continued victorious.

On no sector on the front have the Germans been able to stem the tide of defeat. The French and British are pressing their advantage with a strength that brooks no denial of their efforts.

Thousands of prisoners, many machine guns and cannon, and large stores have been taken. The British alone in the last two days have captured 5,000 prisoners.

In Haig's new offensive, the town of Albert and keystone positions protecting the Germans north of the Somme have been taken, while to the south the British have crossed the Ancre river.

Further progress of the French from the vicinity of Lassigny to Soissons has driven a mighty wedge into the German lines which threatens to divide the armies of Gen. Von Boehm and the German crown prince while Noyon is all but enveloped.

Viewed from all aspects the allied offensive seemingly shows that Gen. Foch now has the initiative entirely in his own hands and that he purposes to press his advantages for two months of good fighting weather which still remains.

BRITISH ARMY HAS MANY THOUSANDS OF CHAPLAINS

(By Associated Press.)

London, Aug. 22.—The British army has 3294 commissioned chaplains including 1844 Church of England clergymen, 622 Roman Catholic, 774 of various Protestant denominations, and 14 Jewish rabbis. These figures do not include Colonial chaplains, nor chaplains engaged locally and uncommissioned.

The War office administers the Army Chaplains' department directly, and chaplains are appointed by the Secretary of War on the nomination of the various denominations. In France, the principal chaplain at the outset of the war was Rev. Dr. Simms of the Presbyterian church of Ireland, ranking as Brigadier-General. At the present time Bishop Gwynne of the Church of England, is in command, with the rank of major-general. Dr. Simms has been graded to the same rank and remains in charge of all chaplains in France belonging to churches other than the Church of England.

About 100 chaplains have been killed in action or died in service, and many have been wounded and invalided home from diseases contracted while on active service. A considerable number have been made prisoners of war, though most of these have been released subsequently under the provisions of the Geneva convention.

Honors received by the commissioned clergy in the British army include two Victoria Crosses, 60 Distinguished Service Badges, 256 Military Crosses and 11 foreign orders.

MCCARTY FARM.

FRENCH KEEP MARCHING ON

(By Associated Press.)

Paris, Aug. 22.—Numerous villages running north of Soissons have been taken by the French, whose drive along the whole front continues according to the War office announcement tonight. The most important of the places captured is Pommiers.

PRISONERS EXCEED 100,000.

Paris, Aug. 22.—The French have crossed the Aislette river on a mile front and are pushing towards Goucy Le Chateau. From the height of Leplemont on the Oise front, French troops are now watching the Germans in their retreat towards the north. The British hold new positions in the vicinity of the Arras-Albert railroad and have established their positions well east of that line. Some of their tanks reported working as far eastward as the Bapaume-Arras road.

Seven more towns have been taken from the Germans. Noyon has been surrounded. The French have pressed forward to the Border of Oise, east of Noyon and have reached the Aislette river at one place.

The Echo says the number of enemy prisoners taken by British and Americans since July 18th exceeds 100,000. An early capture of Noyon is forecasted.

The British began another big offensive at 4:55 o'clock this morning between the Somme and Ancre river to the south of the Point of attack yesterday by General Byng. Today's drive is still under way. The British took between three and four thousand prisoners in their new offensive. Haig report's today.

MINISTER OF AVIATION

NEW CABINET MINISTER RECOMMENDED TO HEAD AIR DEPARTMENT.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 22.—Strictures upon failures, disappointments and delays in the American aircraft program are coupled with praise for what has now been accomplished and a statement that quantity in production may be expected, were features in a long report from the Senate Military sub-Committee on aircraft investigation. While commenting favorably upon the reorganization already effected, the committee strongly urges one man control through the creation of a new department of aviation headed by a cabinet minister.

The waste of millions of dollars through faulty executive organization the proper location of training fields, the employment of inexperienced inspectors, and favoritism to contractors were among the faults charged to the old organization by the committee.

TRIUMPH NOT YET FOUND

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 22.—In the absence of any definite report of activity today on the part of the steamer trawler, Triumph, armed by a German submarine, strengthens the belief in naval circles that the vessel is no longer in the North Atlantic fishing grounds.

The only possible explanation of the failure of the patrol craft to capture the raider, so thorough have been preparations for the net-spread here to capture her, is that she has been sunk by the crew who then returned to the submarine.

MAN POWER BILL TO BE A LAW

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 22.—Taking up the Man-Power Bill for changing draft ages, both branches of Congress today debated the measure with the leaders planning its passage in the House tomorrow and in the Senate by Saturday.

Spirited speeches that needed men for the army are counted upon next year to crush the enemy were made with crowded galleries, while outside a dramatic touch was given in marching to martial songs and cheers of khaki-clad infantry entraining for embarkation points.

 might cross its track. The British boat was returning to base after an

STRANGER THAN FICTION THIS

(By Associated Press.)

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 21.—Mrs.
 Zelia Phelan has been united with her husband after a separation of eight-teen years during which time she was under the impression that her husband had died and that she had buried him. Instead, she had buried another man who perished in the Galveston flood of 1900.

After her husband's supposed death
 Mrs. Phelan married and then, after the death of her second husband recently, she learned that her first husband had become demented searching the country for her.

When the great flood overwhelmed the Texas city, Mrs. Phelan relates, she and her husband became separated during the excitement. Phelan did not return and Mrs. Phelan began a search of undertaking establishments and morgues. Finally she identified the body as that of Phelan and buried it.

A few years later she married R.
 E. Harden in Alton, Ill.

After Harden's death a few weeks ago, Mrs. Phelan visited Alton, the place of their marriage, and while there was invited to inspect the Illinois state hospital. While passing through the hospital she came face to face with her first husband. The great shock of the reunion restored Phelan's reason, and Mrs. Phelan obtained his release from the institution.

Phelan said he had traveled over the entire country searching for his wife.

 Worry over her, superinduced by a blow on the head received during his rescue in Galveston, brought about his mental aberration, it is said.

"At times I was alright," Phelan said, "but during the greater part of the last several years I was mentally unbalanced. Physicians said the injury from the blow would have been healed speedily if I could only have thrown off the great worry about Zelia."

DIES AS FOE FLEES

British Aviator Killed in Triangular Fight.

Salvation Army Truck Driver Figures in Tragical Air Battle at the Front.

Paris.—Dying in the arms of a Salvation Army supply truck driver at the front in France, a British aviator who had just been crashed to earth in a desperate triangular battle in the sky had the satisfaction of witnessing the defeat of his German antagonist by a French plane just before he drew his last breath.

The struggle, according to a report reaching here occurred recently just behind the allied lines in France, and was witnessed by Ransom Gifford, eighteen-year-old son of Col. Adam Gifford, head of the Salvation Army for New England, and residing in Boston.
 Young Gifford was hauling supplies to huts along the line, when suddenly three big planes circled immediately over his head and opened up a terrific fight.

In a short time one plane shot downward in flames and crashed to earth less than 100 feet from Gifford's truck.
 The young Salvationist ran to the wreckage, and after desperate efforts extricated the broken and bleeding aviator, who was still alive. Two French soldiers, who had been concealed near by ran up, and noting the condition of the aviator, raced off in different directions for a doctor and ambulance.
 Young Gifford held the dying airman in his arms, enabling him to lie back, and with fast closing eyes gaze at the conflict still raging immediately over their heads. The French plane put the German to rout, whereupon the English fighter with a smile relaxed and expired in the arms of the Salvationist.

Gifford states that for a month he has not had his shoes off, and that this is no uncommon occurrence with the supply drivers. He spent 24 hours under his truck on a subsequent trip when it ran off the road into a ditch, with shells dropping around it all day
 and half the night.

The Age of Speed

By IMES MACDONALD

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

After nearly ten years on the West coast and in the Orient, Enderly had come home. That gracious feeling of belonging somewhere surged through his heart as he strolled down the drive of his modest estate underneath the stars. It was good to be back again, and he smiled as he leaned against the stone column of the gate listening to the music that syncretized through the night from the country club some three hundred yards down the road.

They were dancing! The youngsters had probably overrun the place after all these years, and then he laughed to himself, for he had been one of the youngsters at the time of his leaving, and those who were kids then, were the youngsters of today.

The lure of the music drew him down the road and he entered the club grounds and stood in the shadows of the great trees. The swaying couples circled past the long windows, the light dresses of the girls swinging wide on the turns. The music ceased, there was a ripple of applause—and then the music started again. A white figure slipped out of the door, stood hesitantly at the top of the steps and then descended. She paused for a moment at the drive and then scudded down through the trees toward the place where Enderly stood against the wall.

Suddenly she stopped, peering into the shadows—and then discerned Enderly in the gloom.

"Oh," she laughed lightly. "There you are, Charley boy! I'm so glad to see you—and so proud of you!" And she danced forward, throwing her eager young arms about Enderly's neck. "I knew you'd make good," she murmured, patting his cheek. And they've all been so hateful!"

Enderly was surprised, but, nothing daunted, he permitted himself to be embraced by this affectionate young woman. He even encouraged her a little and returned four or five of her kisses, but the last one had been given with so much fervor and had lasted such a length of time that the girl fell suddenly silent. Then the old moon moved over a bit and spilled a shaft of silver down through the trees right on the two of them as they stood there.

Sitting on a Log.

heart to heart, and the girl stared in Enderly's eyes with a wild, wondering surprise.

"You—you," she murmured breathlessly. "You are not Charley, at all!" and she moved to release herself.

"Oh, yes I am," smiled Enderly, letting her go, reluctantly.

"But not my Charley! You see—I was expecting my brother!" And her slim hand crept up and pressed tight over her mouth.

Just then there was a swift step on the gravel drive and they turned on the intruder quickly.

"Hello! That you, Sis?" he asked eagerly. Then he reached out and caught her about the shoulders, hugging her with a laugh, as he inspected Enderly curiously. "Why, it's Enderly," he said, extending his hand. "Member me? Member Charley Stanton, the kid you coached on the baseball drive? Sis was only twelve then—awful skinny legs! Member?" he chuckled on.

And then it was that Enderly remembered the Stantons and the two Stanton children. "But why the secret rendezvous, brothers and sisters?" asked Enderly curiously.

Young Stanton grinned at his sister a little shamefacedly. "You've been away and didn't hear, I guess, about yours truly. Darn fool—awful mess—kicked out by Dad—and all that sort of thing. But Sis here stuck to me and I went away and made good, just to spite 'em. Going through town and just had to see the loyal lady for a moment. Got to go to Boston tonight. Taxi down the road—what do you say to walking down with me?"

So Enderly sauntered along with them, listening to their chatter. The boy was full of his job and his rising success, but the girl was silent for the most part. She couldn't rub out the feel of Enderly's kisses long enough to concentrate on anything her talkative brother was saying.

After young Stanton had gone, the two of them stood there in the road and inspected each other silently. Then they turned without a word and walked back to the steps of the clubhouse.

"Are you coming in?" she asked. "Not tonight," he said. "It would spoil it all. Perhaps tomorrow. Will you be here tomorrow afternoon?"

"I don't know, I suppose so," she answered absently.

"Perhaps you think I owe you an apology," he said, "but I'm not sorry, so I can't very well apologize, can I?"

"I suppose not," she agreed with a little shrug. "It was all a—mistake, and anyway—it would be terrible for a girl to have to face the fact that she'd kissed a man against his will."

And with a slight laugh she skipped up the steps and disappeared within.

The next afternoon Enderly found Stanton senior in the locker room at the club.

"Well, Charley," exclaimed that individual genially, "back among your own again? No more to dwell in heathen lands, eh? Had any golf lately?"

"Got some news for you, Stanton, Met Charley in town yesterday. What do you think of that?"

Stanton frowned. "That cub disgraced the Stantons forever. Got mixed up with a chorus girl to the tune of fifteen thousand dollars, and I couldn't afford it, either. Thought his mother'd never be able to hold up her head again!" He looked around stealthily. "How's the boy looking?" he asked.

"Fine—and making good in every way. He's working with Rodgers & Weeks, competitors of yours. Said it might be a good thing to know the business some day in case you might need him."

"Did he say that?" demanded Stanton. "That and a lot more. He's a fine boy, Stanton. Good blood in him."

"By George, Enderly, I've missed that boy," said the older man, sitting down heavily on the bench. Husky, good-looking young devil, and just so full of pep he didn't know what to do with it all."

"Why don't you send for him?" persuaded Enderly, with his hand on the other's shoulder. "He's had his lesson. Let me telegraph for him to come home."

Up in the hall Enderly finished telephoning and stepped from the booth just as Grace Stanton and her daughter entered.

"Why, Charley Enderly!" exclaimed Mrs. Stanton, catching his two hands eagerly. "Ada, dear, this is the young man who used to fish you out of the creek; you used positively to adore him."

"Did I?" said Miss Stanton indifferently, looking out of the window.

"Ada Stanton, if you aren't nice to Charley Enderly, I'll shake you," said her mother impatiently.

"My goodness, ma'am," exclaimed that young lady grimly, "what do you want me to do—kiss him?"

"It wouldn't be the first time," laughed her mother, recalling the awful past of Ada's childhood.

"Nor the last, maybe," grinned Enderly, leading the reluctant Ada out toward the veranda.

Half an hour later, Stanton senior had driven wild into a small clump of woods just beyond the third green, and while hunting for the ball he observed to his dismay a girl and a man sitting on a log. The party of the first part was his daughter and she was being kissed—and seemed to like it, whereat Stanton pushed the eager caddy out and hurried away. "Lost ball," he chuckled.

And that night he confided to his spouse as they prepared for bed. Immediately Mrs. Stanton marched into her daughter's room for an interview. But she found Ada quite unshamed though full of sky-eyed wonder at the love that had surprised her, so Grace Stanton returned to her husband in awe.

"My word!" she murmured. "This is the age of speed. Those two are engaged?"

And then she cried—because, well mothers are queer, sometimes.

KINCHELOE SEES SWIFT VICTORY

WAR WILL NOT LAST A YEAR, KENTUCKIAN, BACK FROM FRONT, BELIEVES.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Members of congress returning from France are optimistic over the progress of the war and the prospects for a successful outcome.

Representative David H. Kinche-loe of Kentucky, who has just returned from the British, French, American and Italian fighting fronts, said: "I don't think the war will last a year. The Huns are on the run sure enough and I think it will be a steady retreat from now on. Our boys are doing the business. They have saved the day and put new hope in the British, French and Italians. "I talked to aviators of all the allied nations and they all told me that the Liberty motor is the last word in aviation. They are getting there in quantity and will hasten the conclusion of the war. Everybody over there who knows anything says the Liberty motor is the last word in aviation."

"I did not see a drunken man in France, although light wine is commonly drunk by everybody, including the soldiers."

When Kinche-loe was passing through a hospital in Paris he was hailed by a wounded man, who proved to be a constituent named Coffman, of Slaughter, Ky. He had been hit in the back by shrapnel. He was anxious to get back into the trenches.

RED GUARDS THROW UP STRONG DEFENSE

CZECHO-SLOVAKS PLACE MACHINE GUNS ON BRITISH CONSULATE.

Vladivostok, Aug. 21.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).

Three thousand Bolshevik Red Guards entrenched themselves in the fortress here and defended themselves with furious fighting when the Czech-Slovaks took over the command of the city on June 29. The Red Guards were aided by 50 Magars and German prisoners of war. The Czech-Slovaks had surrounded the fortress and placed machine guns on the roof of the British consulate and on the roof of the railroad station nearby. They called on the Bolsheviks in the fortress to surrender, but the Red Guards shot down their messengers. Immediately the machine guns opened fire and for two hours a stream of bullets rained on the fortress. So fast and furious was the firing that the men in the fortress were unable to return the fire from the windows. Suddenly there was a tremendous explosion. A Czech had crawled near the fortress under the fire barrage and thrown a mine into the building. A white flag appeared at one of the windows, a party of Czechs rushed to the main entrance of the fortress burst open by a hand grenade. The Bolsheviks threw down their arms and surrendered.

In this conflict the Czech-Slovaks lost four men, with 15 wounded while of their opponents 149 had been killed and wounded. Thus, in the course of a few hours, the all-powerful Soviet had been overthrown and its delegates arrested, its military staff overpowered by force of arms, and its army of Red Guards had either surrendered or thrown away their arms and dispersed without fighting.

Present Ultimatum.

When the local Bolsheviks had decided to disarm them on June 30, the Czech-Slovaks forced all this action by presenting an ultimatum to the Soviet demanding the disarmament of the Red Guards on the ground that it was necessary to safeguard the transport of the Czech-Soviet forces from Russia.

When the Soviets refused to comply with the ultimatum orders were given to arrest these delegates and all of the prominent Bolsheviks. War flags were hoisted on foreign warships in the harbor. Four Soviet torpedo boats attempted to put to sea but were stopped and surrendered to officers of a Japanese cruiser and a British cruiser.

The British and Japanese cruisers landed additional forces and aided the Czech-Slovaks in occupying important points including the powder magazine. Strong forces of Japan with machine guns, British marines and Czech-Slovaks lined the main streets. All traffic was stopped. The streets were thronged with people and all business was stopped. Materials were landed from the Chinese cruiser to protect the consulate and residents. The Bolsheviks were rapidly driven out and each was greeted with shouts of the people. The fighting at the fortress. Now the Czech-Slovaks are the military masters of the town. The British, American, French, Japanese and Chinese consulates are guarded by their own national forces, respectively, except that the French consulate is guarded by the Japanese. A small party of American marines landed on the evening of June 29.

NEW DRAFT TO AFFECT 250,000 KENTUCKIANS

MAJ. RHODES EXPECTS 75,000 WILL PASS PHYSICAL EXAMINATION FOR THE ARMY.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 22.—The first call for Kentucky selectives under the provisions of the Administration's man power bill, extending the draft ages, will be issued probably the latter part of November, Maj. Henry F. Rhodes, head of the selective service in Kentucky said.

If the bill passes, as urged by the Administration—extending the ages from 18 to 45—Major Rhodes estimates that between 240,000 and 250,000 men will be affected in Kentucky. Of this number, he said, 75,000 or 80,000 will pass the physical examination and be ready for a call to the colors.

With the extension of the draft ages, he said, there is little probability of deferred classes being called at all. Youths who have attained their twenty-first birthday since June 5 last will be called into service of the latter part of September or the first of October.

Ten thousand men qualified for general military service will be called the first week in September and there are enough men in class 1 at present to fill this call.

In addition to this call for registrants qualified for general service, between 1,500 and 2,000 men held for special or limited service will also be called the latter part of this month or the first of September. About half of the number called will go to Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga.

Maj. Rhodes said he had just received notice that 3,150,000 forms had been shipped him from the War Department, and these forms must be distributed by his office to the various local boards throughout the State.

Plans for the registration next month, as provided by the man-power bill, are now almost complete, Maj. Rhodes said. Names of all the registrars in the 120 counties are now in his hands.

PARIS BACK TO NORMAL

(By Associated Press.)

Paris, Aug. 21.—The first Salon to be held since the war has just closed its doors, after being open two months. The receipts from entries reached the equivalent of $14,000 and the sum taken in from the sale of works exhibited was $35,000. The figures are considered very satisfactory as the opening of the exhibition coincided with the commencement of the bombardment of the capital by long range guns and with the active period of air raids, two events which led to the departure of many people who would have visited the show.

The exhibition was held in the Petit in the Champs Elysees, the Grand Palais being now a hospital, and the two societies, the Artistes Francais and the Beaux Arts, generally known as the Old and New Salons combined their forces instead of holding separate exhibitions.

Dear Mother:
I will endeavor to drop you a few lines to see how you are, fine and dandy, I hope.

My wound is getting along just fine. I am yet in base hospital No. 19 at Vichy, France. Will soon be able to report for duty. We lost one of our lieutenants, and captain and one enant wounded. But they are getting along just fine.

I guess Charlie is spreading some joy in his new car. I only wish that I was there to help him out. But I guess I will get there some time and then I will be some happy kiddo. Don't you think so?

We are still driving these dirty Boches hard. I hope we can run them through Berlin so far that they will never get back, ha, ha.

If there is anything I do hate it is one of those dirty Germans.

Well mother, I must close. Don't worry over me for I am getting along just fine.

Wasn't hurt bad at first. Answer when you can, mother, to my old address. I will get it some time.

GAY-MCCREARY.

Richmond, Ky., Aug. 22.—Miss Harriet Newberry McCreary, daughter of Robert H. McCreary, of Chicago, and grand-daughter of former Gov. James B. McCreary, was married yesterday to James Gatewood Gay, of Lexington, at the residence of her grandfather here.

OUR BOYS.

Wanted—Some good-hearted person, old or young, married or single, to visit the home of those who are sad and lonely on account of their boys having gone to the war. Persons who can sing and play especially desired.

I pity those of you who have known the pleasure of having a big, manly, jolly bod come in your home three times a day, whistling or dancing, no matter how tired, how hard the day's work has been, always something funny to tell, pull your hair or pinch you on the arm or cheek as he comes through the kitchen to see if "you've got anything good to eat." I say I pity those who have not had this pleasure, but as a recompense for not having had this pleasure you cannot know the anguish, the lonely aching void in our hearts as we go on day after day, night after night wondering if our boy will ever be at home again.

Anxiously we watch for the mail-man every day, until the boys write us they are packed up ready to leave the camp, but are not allowed to write any more, then we wait and wait and wonder how long it will be before we get the card saying that he has arrived safely overseas. But we mustn't show any of this anguish in our faces, we must show only pride, proud that our boys have been taken from us to give their lives for their mothers and sisters alone? No, indeed for others who are not giving a thought to the sacrifice that is being made for them that they may go on enjoying life as they have always done.

You can't lose any time by making us a visit. Bring your knitting or your Belgian sewing with you. Our sewing machines and knitting needles are busy all the time. We can't stop to entertain you, neither can we fix you any extra desserts or good things to eat. We have no sugar, but we will be glad to have you share our breakfast of cornmeal pancakes and Karo syrup and plenty of milk and butter and eggs if you like. You may have to sacrifice something to make us this visit, but isn't it a tip for everyone to sacrifice, A MOTHER.
